The ladies of the district prepared a substantial repast in the schoolhouse and quite a large gathering of neighbors and friends assembled to enjoy the good things provided. During the afternoon the children were entertained with nuts, oranges and lemonade, the older folk being greatly interested in a baseball match between the "Stars" (the local team) and the "Plain Clothes" the "Stars" proving victorious in a well contested game.

The Unknown Joy

Beneath a bough of roses
Covered with beads of pearly dew,
A quiet soul reposes
In thought serene and true.

The sun in the Land of Morn
With rosy flame betokens day;
And the moon with its shy horn
In silence steals away.

Rich green fields of wondrous grain
Raised high on tapers slender,
Wave o'er the far-stretched plain
Kissed by breezes tender.

A spirit of peace is found
O'er spreading the earth with balm;
A joy, deep and profound,
Breathes tranquillity and calm.

What's the cause of all th's joy?
To the wise it is not odd.
The answer we must employ:
It is the Love of God.

SAFETY FOR CHILDREN DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows, or should know, the danger her baby runs during the hot summer months. Summer complaints come quickly and develop so rapidly that often before the mother realizes her baby is ill he is beyond all help. Every mother of small children should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. A Tablet now and then will keep baby's bowels working regularly and his little stomach sweet—this is the secret of keeping baby healthy and of warding off cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and all other dreaded summer complaints. The Tablets are guaranteed free from all injurious drugs—and may be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Every girl likes to tell how she has made men cry.

Regarded as one of the most potent compounds ever introduced with which to combat all summer complaints and inflammation of the bowels, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial has won to itself a reputation that no other cordial for the purpose can aspire to. For young or old suffering from these complaints it is the best medicine that can be procured.

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff."

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescents' home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

Profane Silence

The other day upon the links a distinguished clergyman was playing a closely contested game of golf. He carefully teed up his ball and addressed it with the most approved grace; he raised his driver and hit the ball a tremendous clip, but instead of soaring into the azure it perversely went about twelve feet to the right and then buzzed around in a circle. The clerical gentleman frowned, scowled, pursed up his mouth and bit his lips, but said nothing, and a friend who stood by him said: "Doctor, that is the most profane silence I ever witnessed."

Spring Finds the Human System

Loaded With Impurities, Which Cause Pains, Aches and Feelings of Fatigue

When the Liver and Kidneys Are Overworked and Break Down Get them Right by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

In the spring the human system is loaded with poisons which have accumulated as a result of artificial winter life. There has been too much breathing of poisoned indoor air, too little outdoor exercise, too much eating of heavy indigestible food, especially too much meat and too little fruit.

The liver and kidneys struggle to overcome this condition, but the task is too great for them and they get sluggish and torpid, fail in their work and often become diseased themselves.

They must have help such as is given them by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no great mystery of how these pills purify the blood and take away the cause of tired, spring feelings, backaches, headaches, bodily pains or derangements of the digestive system.

If the blood is to be purified the liver and kidneys must do it. And they will, if you awaken their action by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It will not take long to get these blood filters into working order if you use this treatment. A few hours will bring improvement and you will learn how to keep these organs healthy and active. One pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The Pill That Leads Them All.—Pills are the most portable and compact of all medicines, and when easy to take are the most acceptable of preparations. But they must attest their power to be popular. As Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the most popular of all pills they must meet all requirements. Accuracy compounded and composed of ingredients proven to be effective in regulating the digestive organs, there is no surer medicine to be had anywhere.

"You never learned to sing or play the violin?" "No," replied Mr. Growcher. "What's the use of going to all that trouble? Whenever I feel that the neighborhood is too quiet I get out the lawn mower."—Washington Star.

Nothing or Nobody
 "You don't get along very well with your mother-in-law, I hear," said a friend to a young husband.
 "No, I don't," answered the bridegroom. "Nobody can. Even the food she eats doesn't agree with her. When she comes into the room everybody shuts up. The other day she got into a folding bed and the bed shut up."

Who was Surprised?

"We have the surprise beautifully planned," said young Mrs. Westerleigh to the guests, "and Frank does not suspect a thing. I think he has even forgotten that today's his birthday. He will get home from the office at about seven o'clock. Then he always goes upstairs to take off his coat and put on his smoking-jacket for the evening. When he is upstairs I will call out suddenly, 'Oh, Frank, come downstairs—be quick! The gas is escaping.' Then he will rush down here and find the crowd of friends waiting for him."

It went exactly as planned. Westerleigh came home at the regular hour and went directly upstairs. The hidden guests held their breath while Mrs. Westerleigh called out excitedly, "Oh, Frank, come down quick. The gas is escaping in the parlor."

Every light had been turned out, and the parlor was in perfect darkness. There was a rapid rush of feet down the stairway, then a voice said, "I don't smell any gas."

"Better light the jet," Mrs. Westerleigh suggested tremulously. "Here's a match."

The match was struck, and suddenly the room was flooded with light. Everybody screamed. The hostess fainted. For there in the centre of the room stood Westerleigh, attired only in a natty union suit, with a fresh pair of trousers over his arm.

Couldn't See It

The mother of a girl baby, herself named Rachel, told her husband that she was tired of the good old names borne by most of the feminine members of the family, and she would like to give the little girl a name entirely different. She wrote on a slip of paper, "Eugenie," and asked her husband if he didn't think that was a pretty one.

The father studied the name for a moment and then said:

"Well, call her Yousheenie, but I don't see vat you gain by it."

Doesn't Remember Him Now

 "Yes, sah," said Uncle Mose, "it was right; I useter 'member seein' him, but since I jined de church, sah, I's done forgot him."

The Adventures of Mr. =====

BY

H. ARMITSTEAD, B. Sc.

I detest using a false name and as I cannot give the Gentleman's correct name I leave the name blank. Mr. — was a rather retiring man whom I often met in the Far East. Often after dinner over cigars we had long talks, and when I could get him in reminiscent mood he had many adventures to relate. — was quite a personality and although his stories were modestly told, he could give a piquancy to them that was refreshing. Appended is another of his stories:—

WITH THE BEGGARS OF INDIA Concluded from Last Week

A man got up and he looked like a YOGIE, or holy man, and I could not wonder at the credulous natives being taken in. The YOGIE advanced to the centre of the room, and from a brazier took some pieces of glowing charcoal, and made a little fire on the ground. Over this fire he placed primeval iron tripod stand and on the top of the stand, in a groove made to fit it, a large CHATTIE or earthenware vessel, which was first shown to us as being quite empty. Another man then rose and approaching the CHATTIE emptied into it the contents of LOTAH, or small vessel adding a small handful of dry rice. The two men joined hands and danced round the CHATTIE at a furious rate shouting incantations all the while.

The audience knew not what was going to happen; but on the men making mystic signs over the CHATTIE they were surprised to see three huge hooded heads of cobras uprising from the vessel. The co-bras were seized by the neck and lifted bodily out of their warm confinement. The CHATTIE was overturned and disgorged a heap of sweet-smelling JESS-AMINE flowers which immediately rendered the atmosphere less unbearable. Then I watched the most revolting and disagreeable sights that has ever fallen to my lot to behold. But this I pass over. The audience however seemed to enjoy the exhibition immensely, for they showed their signs of approval by WAH WAH, SHABAASHING with great gusto and delight.

The next trick was the transmu-tation of metal. For this purpose three fires were lighted and over these were placed three iron stands. Three clay vessels which were shown to be empty, were arranged on the stands, and one of the fakirs (?) cried to the assembly, "God is Great. He has heard our prayers and supplications, come ye unrighteous and cast your silver into the sacred fire so that it may become gold and ye may glorify the miraculous powers that is bestowed on us, humble instruments of the All Powerful." A coconut shell was handed round and most of the audience dropped in some silver coin. The money was thrown into one of the vessels and immediately a white haze issued from it. The man uttered some unintelligible jargon and overturned a vessels from which scurried a lively mongoose.

The coconut shell was sent round again this time for cents which were thrown into the second vessel. A green flame shot forth from the receptacle, which on being reversed produced three full-grown white pigeons.

The third vessel now remained and I was curious to see the denouement of the transmutation trick. The group of performers joined hands and danced and gavotted at a most furious rate. Presently red and yellow sparks fell round like a cascade. The vessel was thrown to the ground. Among the broken fragments was seen a yellow molten liquid which soon became solid. In tones of awe we were told that it was gold which had come from the baser metals. And never was an audience more mystified. I must admit I nonplussed at the marvelous contents of the vessels, which had been shown to us as empty.

A fine piece of illusion followed. In a small circular wicker basket was packed a boy who was moulded and twisted till he looked like a piece of Oxford brawn. A lid was put on the basket, and the whole covered with a big square piece of cloth. Before the audience could realize what was going to happen, one of the mendicants raised the basket above his head and dashed it to the ground with terrific force. Some of us ejaculated cries of horror, but instead of seeing mangled remains on the ground there was a delightful litter of charming bouquets. The surprise of everyone in the audience was increased when boy beaming with smiles rushed from the corner of the room.

A neat trick was one of fire and water. Two small brass bowls which were duly exposed to the audience were placed on the ground into to which was poured water till it flowed to overflowing and into the other was thrown a handful of rice. The one that contained the rice almost immediately began to show activity—a loud effervescing, a puff of smoke, and a blood red flame followed each other in rapid succession. When the flame had risen a couple of feet and appeared to be at its zenith, the vessel of water was emptied on it. The flame collapsed and the residue which resembled liquid fire was divided between two earthenware vessels. Two of the performers put the vessels to their mouths and took what seemed to be a deep draught, each. Throwing down the vessels they bent back their heads and blew forth red flames from their mouth. They danced and twisted their bodies into all sorts of contorted positions belching forth fire and flames all the while. It was a diabolical scene and strikingly effective, a fit representation for those rogues acting under the guise of religion, who were all their lives qualifying for a residence in the domains of His Satanic Majesty.

More it would be easy to tell of the weird performances; but enough for the once. I breathed freely when I got outside the na-

CHAPTER XX.

The Prodigal's Return

Money can do most things, even in the matter of furnishing a large house with competent servants, and by six o'clock Vera had contrived for the machine to run a little more smoothly. At any rate she was in a position now to provide Fenwick with something in the shape of a respectable dinner on his return from town.

It was about a quarter to eight when he put in an appearance, and for the first time for some days he changed into evening dress for the chief meal of the day. He appeared to be morose and savage as he had been in the morning. He answered Vera's questions curtly, so that she fell back upon herself and ate her soup in silence. And yet, though Fenwick was so quiet, it seemed to Vera that he was regarding her with a deep distrust, so that she found herself flushing under his gaze. He put his spoon down presently, and pointed with his hand to Vera's swollen fingers.

"What have you got there?" he demanded. "How did you do that?"

"I burnt it," Vera stammered. "It was an accident."

"Well, I don't suppose you burnt it on purpose," Fenwick growled. "What I asked you was how you did it."

"I repeat it was an accident," Vera said, coldly. "I burnt my fingers in such a way—"

"Yes, and you are not the first woman who has burnt her fingers interfering with things that don't concern her. I insist upon knowing exactly how that accident happened." Vera turned a cold, contemptuous face to her companion; she began to understand now that his suspicions were aroused. It came back to her now vividly enough that she had dropped the hot sovereign on the floor and had not replaced it. It was just possible that Fenwick had gone into the little room and had missed the sovereign from the nest layer of coins on the top of the box. And then another dreadful thought came to her—supposing that the drugged man had not recovered from the effects of his dose by the time Fenwick had returned? There was nothing for it now but to take refuge behind an assumed indignation and decline to answer offensive questions put in that tone of voice. Vera was still debating as to the most contemptuous reply when the dining room door opened and one of the newly arrived servants announced Mr. Blossett.

Fenwick rose to his feet and an unmistakable oath escaped his lips. All the same he forced a kind of sickly smile to his face as a big man with an exceedingly red face and an exceedingly offensive swaggering manner, came into the dining room. The stranger was quite well dressed, nothing about his garments offended the eye or outraged good taste, yet all the same the man had "boulder" written all over him in large letters. His impudent red face, his aggressively waxed moustache, the easy familiarity of his manner, caused Vera to shrink within herself, though she could have been grateful for the diversion which his appearance had created.

"Well, Fenwick, my buck!" he cried. "You didn't expect that I should accept your invitation quite so promptly, but I happen to be knocking around here and I thought I'd drop in and join you in your chop. This is your daughter, I suppose? Glad to make your acquaintance, miss. I was told there were many beauties at Merton Grange, but I find there is one more than I expected."

Vera merely bowed in reply. The man was so frankly, hopelessly, utterly vulgar that her uppermost feeling was one of amusement. She could see that Fenwick was terribly annoyed, though for some reason he had to keep himself in hand and be agreeable to Blossett.

"Sit down," he said. "Ring the bell, and we will get another cover laid. I don't suppose you mind missing the soup."

"I have been in the soup too often to care about it," Blossett laughed. "To tell the truth we had such a warm time last night that solid food and myself are not on speaking terms just now. Here, waiter, fill me a tumbler of champagne. I daresay when I have got that down my neck I shall be able to pay my proper attentions to this young lady."

Fenwick made no reply; he cut savagely at his fish as if he were passing the knife over the throat of the intruder. Meanwhile the stranger rattled on, doubtless under the impression that he was making himself exceedingly agreeable. Vera sat there watching the scene with a certain sense of amusement. She was still a little pale and unsteady, still doubtful as to the amount of information that Fenwick had gleaned as to her movements that afternoon. She would be glad to get away presently and try to ascertain for herself whether the drugged man had recovered or not. Meanwhile, there was no occasion for her to talk, as the intruder was quite able to carry on all the necessary conversation.

CURED IN ONE MONTH

If every woman who has Kidney or Bladder trouble, could go to Davisville, Ont., and talk to Mrs. A. Simpson, they would do just as she did—take GIN PILLS and cure themselves. "For 14 or 15 years I had Kidney or Bladder trouble, suffering at times intense pain. I doctored continually but nothing gave me permanent relief until I was persuaded to try Gin Pills. Within a couple of days I received great relief, and after taking one box was completely cured."

"This is mighty fine tippie," he said. "Waiter, give me another tumbler of champagne. In my chequer career I don't often run up against this class of lotion. The worst of it is, it makes one talk too fast, and seeing that I have got to run the gauntlet with the next little parcel of sparklers—"

"Fool!" Fenwick burst out. His face was livid with rage, his eyes were shot with passionate anger. "Fool! can't you be silent? Don't you see that there is one here who is outside—"

"Beg pardon," Blossett said, unsteadily. "I thought the young woman knew all about it. Lord, with her dainty face and her aristocratic air, what a bonnet she'd make. Wouldn't she look nice passing off as the daughter of the old military swell with a fondness for a little game of cards? You know what I mean—the same game that old Jim and his wife used to play."

"Be silent!" thundered Fenwick in a tone that at last seemed to penetrate the thick skull of his companion. "My—my daughter knows nothing of these things."

Blossett stammered something incoherent, his manner became more sullen, and long before dinner was completed it was evident that he had had far more wine than was good for him.

"If you will excuse me, I will leave you," Vera said coldly. "I do not care for any dessert or coffee tonight."

"Perhaps you had better go," Fenwick said. "I will take care that this thing does not happen again."

But Vera had already left the room. She was still consumed with anxiety and desired to know more of what had happened to the man whom Fenwick had drugged. She did not dare venture as far as the little room, for fear that suspicious eyes should be watching her. It was just possible that Fenwick had given his satellites a hint to note her movements. Therefore, all she could do was to sit in the drawing room with the door open. Some of the men began to pass presently, and after a little time with a sight of relief, Vera caught sight of the one upon whom the trick of the snuff was played. He seemed all right, as far as she could judge, and the girl began to breathe a little more freely.

As she sat there in the silence, watching and waiting, she saw Fenwick and his companion emerge from the dining room and cross the hall in the direction of the billiard room. Blossett was still talking lightly and incoherently; he leant on the arm of his host and obviously the support was necessary. Vera had never before seen a drunken man under the same roof as herself and her soul revolted at the sight. How much longer was this going on, she wondered? For the present she had only to possess herself in patience and hope for the best. She was longing now for something like action. The silence and stillness of the house oppressed her, she would have liked to be up and doing something.

The silence was broken presently by the sound of angry voices proceeding from the billiard room. Half a dozen men seemed to be talking at once—words floated to Vera's ears; then suddenly the noise ceased as if somebody had clapped a lid on the meeting. Vera guessed exactly what had happened. The billiard room door had been closed for fear of the servants hearing what was going on. It was just possible that behind those closed doors the mystery that had so puzzled Vera was being unfolded. She recollected that between the billiard room and the dining room was a fairly large conservatory opening on either side into the apartments in question. It was just possible that Fenwick and his companions might have overlooked the conservatory. At any rate Vera determined to take advantage of the chance. The conservatory was full of palms and plants and flowers, behind which it was possible for the girl to hide and listen to all that was going on. Vera fully understood the danger she was running, she quite appreciated the fact that discovery might be visited with unpleasant consequences. But that did not deter her a moment. She was in the conservatory a little later, and was not displeased to find that the door leading to the billiard room was open. Behind a thick mass of ferns she took her stand. Between their feathery fronds she could see into the billiard room without being seen. Fenwick was standing by the side of the table laying down the law about something, while the rest were scattered about the room.

"Why should I do it?" Fenwick was saying. "Why should I trust a man like you? You come down to-night on the most important errand, well knowing the risks you are running, and you start by getting drunk at the dinner table."

"I wasn't drunk," Blossett said, sullenly. "As to the girl, why, I naturally expected—"

"Who gave you the right to expect?" Fenwick demanded. "Couldn't you see at a glance that she knew nothing about it. Another word and you would have betrayed the whole thing. You can stay here all night and talk if you like, but you are not going to have that parcel to take away to London with you. In your present condition you would be in the hands of the police before morning."

"But I haven't got a cent," Blossett said. "I hadn't enough in my pocket to pay my cab fare from Canterbury; and don't you try on any of your games with me, because I am not the sort of a man to stand them. You are a fine lot of workmen I know, but there isn't one of you has the pluck and ability to take two thousand pounds worth of that stuff and turn it into cash in a week. Now look at the last parcel I had, I got rid of it in such a manner that no one could possibly discover that I ever handled the metal at all. Who amongst you could say the same thing?"

"Oh, you are right enough so long as you keep sober," Fenwick said. "But, all the same, I shall not trust you with the parcel that is waiting upstairs."

QUITE A CLIMBER.

Sir Walter Gilbey Has a Reputation
In the Swiss Mountains.

Sir Walter Gilbey has celebrated his eightieth birthday at Elsenham Hall, Essex, England, surrounded by his family, grandchildren, and other relatives and friends. The village was richly decorated with flags, and various presentations were made in honor of the birthday. Sir Walter is a living contradiction to the saying that a rolling stone gathers no moss, for he has gathered much moss and had tried many things, from a clerkship at under a pound a week in an estate agent's office to service in the Army Pay Department in the Crimea, before joining his brother in the modest wine and spirit venture, which his business-like methods have since converted into one of the most profitable concerns of its kind in the kingdom.

Despite his age, Sir Walter is still wonderfully hale and hearty. This estimable condition he attributes to life in the open. He is still as keenly interested in horses as he was a quarter of a century ago. It was he who was mainly responsible for the London Cart-horse Parade, an event which every Whit Monday Sir Walter never fails to attend.

In appearance, Sir Walter Gilbey presents a striking contrast to the average prosperous merchant-prince and scientific agriculturist. In dress and general bearing he still clings to the mid-Victorian style. His frilled shirt, with a small white cambric tie and a high stiff collar, a buff waistcoat, and closely-fitting drab box-cloth trousers, were familiar features in clubland. When out walking he invariably carries a large black-rimmed monocle, and a little ash stick cut from the hedge and utterly innocent of ornament or ferrule.

In his early days Sir Walter used to devote some portion of every year to mountain climbing. While in Switzerland he once had a somewhat weird experience. He was about to make an ascent when he thought that he might as well make some inquiries about the guide who was to accompany him.

"Is he a thoroughly skilful climber?" he asked his hotel-keeper.

"I should say so," was the reply. "He has lost two parties of tourists down the mountain side, and each time came off without so much as a scratch on himself."

Strange Occupations.

Some strange occupations figure on Indian census schedules. At the last census, in many villages of Hyderabad and the Central Provinces enthusiastic and devout enumerators returned the village shrines and temples as "occupied houses." The occupant was the idol whose occupation was stated as "granting boons and blessings," or "subsistence on contributions from the tenants." Other callings returned on the schedules include collectors of edible birds' nests, receivers of stolen goods, witches, wizards, and cow-drovers.

Silence Cloth.

FARM PRODUCE IS IMPORTED

WESTERN FARM METHODS ARE SEVERELY CRITICIZED

Mr. Lanigan Points Out That the Three Western Provinces are Not Supplying Sufficient Produce for Home Consumption—Wheat Production in Manitoba is Also Decreasing.

Winnipeg.—Startling figures were given recently by W. B. Lanigan, assistant freight traffic manager of the C. P. R.

He pointed out that the three western provinces are not doing their duty and that the farmers do not realize the condition in which they are placing themselves, for vast quantities of food stuffs are being imported from the east, from the United States, and from abroad.

"Last year," he said, "one firm alone shipped in 1,000 cars of packing house products to supply the urban cities of the west."

"In the same year $10,000,000 worth of horses were brought into Western Canada from the United States. Again between 200 and 300 carloads of mutton were shipped in for the mining camps of British Columbia and a good deal of this came to Winnipeg. Also during the past winter months Winnipeg imported from Dakota and Minnesota $10,000 worth of milk."

"Another point to be remembered is that vegetables for Winnipeg and other cities in the west are daily imported from Chicago, and the Twin Cities. Potatoes are shipped as far west as Revelstoke, B. C., and are shipped as far east as Prince Edward Island. Again fresh beef is being imported daily which is killed in Toronto, and no less than seven carloads were brought in one day recently."

In other words, Manitoba, which boasts of its agricultural wealth, does not produce the stuff to feed its own cities and even the farmers themselves are buying farm products. Eggs, butter, cheese also, are imported from Ontario, Wisconsin, Nebraska and as far southwest as California. The province has devoted itself to grain growing, until the wider settled portions of the country are choking out the products. Stations which formerly shipped a million bushels of grain during a season have now dropped to between 100,000 and 200,000 bushels, while the acreage remains the same. On the other hand there is no province where the land is more fertile and the opportunities as advantageous as Manitoba where Winnipeg is supplying an ever-ready market for all farm products.

Thorough Survey of Jasper Park

Winnipeg.—A. Wheeler, director of the Canadian Alpine club, Banff, Howard Douglass, commissioner of the Dominion parks, Edmonton, and C. D. Wilcott, Jr., of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, will leave Edmonton for the end of the steel on the G. T. P., and from there they will take a pack train into Jasper Park. Dr. Wheeler has been commissioned by the G. T. P. to make a topographical survey of the Jasper Park district, the Yellow Head country and the vicinity of Mt. Robson, the highest point in the Canadian Rockies. Dr. Wheeler is going to study the geographical nature of the country and the natural history features. The object of the tour is to secure information that cannot fail to be of the utmost value to intending settlers in that part of the country and an exhaustive account of the survey will appear in book form next year.

Lords Amend the Anti-Veto Bill

London.—The house of lords by a vote of 192 to 486 passed the Earl of Cromer's amendment to the government's anti-veto bill. The amendment affects the clause empowering the speaker of the house of commons to decide what a money bill is, substituting a committee of seven members from each house and permitting the speaker and chambermaid to vote. The amendment is designed to prevent the passing of general social legislation under the guise of financial measures.

No Naval Display by United States

Washington.—The opposition on the part of the Canadian government to American naval display on the Great Lakes, is believed to be back of naval department's orders that the naval militia vessels on the lakes should not engage in combined exercises and manoeuvres this summer, the department ascribes its orders to "unavoidable circumstances."

No Change in Peace Treaty

Washington.—Following a call of Secretary Knox at the White House, the statement setting forth the status of the arbitration negotiations between the United States and Great Britain was given out in which it was said that there will be no substantial changes from the general features of the treaty as given out by the secretary of state on May 17.

Band Contest at Red Deer

Red Deer.—The splendid arch erected for Mr. Borden's visit is being left intact for the Orange celebration of the Twelfth of July, when three thousand visitors are expected. The chief event of the day is a band contest, for which the first prize is a silver cup presented by Wm. Piper and individual medals for the winning band. Ten bands are expected.

HARD TO GET STOCK

Agricultural Department Get Some Good Jerseys—Unable to Get Horses

Edmonton.—Hon. Duncan Marshall and H. A. Craig, superintendent of demonstration farms, returned recently from a trip to Toronto which had as its object the purchase of live stock for new demonstration farms of the provincial government.

"Our purchasing expedition was only partially successful," said Mr. Marshall. "We bought a carload of fine dairy cattle at the Bull farm at Brampton. They are all Jerseys and have been shipped to the Medicine Hat farm."

"We could not find horses worth the money we were ready to pay for first class stock. Good big horses have all been picked up and are not for sale."

Mr. Marshall and Mr. Craig visited a number of Ontario farms to get ideas for equipment of demonstration farms with buildings and for furnishing interior. What was considered a model farm was inspected on the farm of Robert Kilgour, Toronto.

Drought was in evidence in Ontario, Mr. Marshall says, "One stretch of country in particular between Guelph and Toronto seemed to be suffering from lack of rain."

COMMERCE AFFECTED

Canadian Trade Commissioner Tells of Conditions in Mexico Following Rebellion

Ottawa.—A. W. Donley, Canadian trade commissioner in Mexico, has forwarded a report to the department of trade and commerce outlining trade conditions following the revolution. "Peace and tranquillity," he says, "are gradually returning and the outlook is hopeful. In some districts order has not been completely restored, but generally speaking the populace is cheerfully accepting the new order of things and acclaiming the new regime."

Elections have been set for October, until which time conditions will continue unsettled. The revolution, Mr. Donley says, affected general business financial operations and sown areas. Wholesale business was interrupted, foreign capital ceased to come in and fifty million pesos went out of the country. Foreign trade, however, is brighter than it was a year ago. Imports from Canada have fallen off owing to the fact that imports of foreign wheat ceased.

Grain Men and Crop Improvement

Milwaukee, Wis.—The subject of crop improvement featured the closing session of the summer meeting of the Council of North American Grain Exchanges recently. Secretary Ball, of Chicago, chairman of the crop improvement committee, in his report recommended that the council co-operate with allied interests in the crop improvement work in realizing funds. Discussion of the report resulted in the adoption of a resolution to the effect that the committee should go ahead with its work on the present lines in such a way that it will not lessen the control by the council over the present work and that each grain exchange organize a crop improvement association to work with the committee.

Fate of Napolitano Woman

Ottawa, Ont.—For the first time on record two Americans have offered to die in the place of a woman condemned to execution. This is the case of Angelino Napolitano, the Italian woman who in defence of her honor at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., killed her husband.

The Ottawa Journal carries a London cable, which conveys a hint from Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the effect that the chances are against the woman going to the scaffold. Millions of American and Canadian women are watching the case with intense interest.

Foreign Churches to Leave Portugal

Lisbon, via Badajoz, Spain.—It is understood that the British charge d'affaires and French, Italian and German ministers have notified the government that the foreign churches here will be closed on July first unless assurance is given that foreign churches and ecclesiastical associations will be exempted from operation of law separating church and state which is to become effective on that date.

Will Laurier Appeal to Electors

London.—The Birmingham Daily Post understands that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is convinced that he could command a reciprocity majority in the present House of Commons at Ottawa, but in face of the pronounced feeling in Canada he does not desire to take the responsibility of passing the agreement upon his party's shoulders without an appeal to the people.

C. P. R. After New Railway

Montreal.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy admitted that both his company and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Company were after the control of the Quebec Central. He stated that the deal had not been completed.

MARKED HONORS FOR LAURIER

SIR WILFRID IS CHEERED BY CROWDS IN LONDON

The Premier of Canada Receives a Popular Ovation in His Drive Through London to Attend the Thanksgiving Services at St. Paul's—Signal Recognition Given by the Royal Family.

London.—One of the greatest receptions ever accorded a public man, and one which rivalled the most enthusiastic outbreaks of popular demonstrations in England, was the greeting accorded Sir Wilfrid Laurier recently. It was a triumphal hour for the veteran premier, following as it did on the vicious campaign waged against him by the Unionist press. Not only was he rapturously greeted by the populace, but was also the recipient of marked favor by the King. The thanksgiving service in connection with the coronation ceremonies was held at St. Paul's and Sir Wilfrid was in the first state carriage, and dressed in the uniform of his imperial honors. His was a personality to attract attention, and all along the route to the Cathedral immense throngs singled him out for special recognition. At the Cathedral the honors were further marked by distinguished preferment on the part of the King. Other dignitaries entered by a north door, but Canada's premier was escorted to the crimson entrance prepared for royalty.

The veteran Bishop of Ripon was at the door to receive him. The premier was greatly pleased with the attention given him by the populace and markedly impressed with the signal recognition given him by the King.

Ocean Breaks in at Bottom of Mine

Halifax.—Hiram Donkin, deputy commissioner of mines, told the Western Associated Press correspondent recently, that the accident to the coal mine at Port Hood is unprecedented in the annals of mining. The breaks have occurred previously in submarine mines but never at the bottom of the mine. In this case, 1030 feet below the tide level.

The break was as unexpected as would be a bolt of lightning from a clear sky and the remarkable and mysterious thing is that it occurred at the extreme bottom of the mine. The mine department has been taking measurements at hourly intervals to see if the inflow continued at the same rate as at first. If any material diminution is reported, the officials would conclude that the fissure was filling up with salt. With the break so far down there is more chance of this than if it had occurred in the upper levels. The report of the measurements had not come to hand from Port Hood.

Would You Like to be a Member?

Ottawa.—The House of Commons accountants are sending out the indemnity earned by the members during the month of June. Although the house was not working the money goes out on the basis of ten dollars a day for thirty days of June, or $300 to each member. In most cases members furnished the customary documents, but a few omitted the affidavits required by the act. The accountants duly notified them of the error and in the meantime the money stays in Ottawa. There will be one more payment this session, an instalment of $240 will be forthcoming on August 1st, after that there will be no pay and no fees for non-attendance.

Germany Suspicious of Uncle Samuel

Solingen Rhenish, Prussia.—The German government has instituted an investigation among the local cutlery manufacturers to learn the facts concerning the alleged custom frauds at New York, where a large quantity of cutlery from this place has been seized on charges of under valuation. The manufacturers here say that the action of the American customs officers was merely to aid American competitors and the government, it is said, will gather information on this point.

Settlers Bring Large Effects to Canada

Ottawa.—Figures completed by the customs department, for the year show that settlers' effects to a total value of $14,072,611 were brought into Canada, the largest property of the largest immigration in Canadian history. The amount exceeds the total for the previous fiscal year by nearly four millions.

China Busy Fortifying

Hong Kong.—China has begun to fortify Hainchiang, in north-western China, which is considered the commanding location against Russia. The Russian papers of Harbin are unanimous in their reports that Chinese troops are steadily moving from South Manchuria into North Manchuria and Mongolia.

A Revolt Against Madero in Mexico

Mexico City.—An armed revolt against the Madero government has broken out at Burro, in the State of Coahuila. The leaders are believed to be Magonistas and the movement is thought to be socialistic.

Shouted in Court; Jailed for a Day

London.—A youth in a court room who cried "Long live the Pope" and "Long live the King," was sentenced to one day's imprisonment.

Railway Companies Expected to Arrive at a Settlement in Dispute in Two Weeks

Calgary.—In the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Stuart the injunction of the C. P. R. against the G. T. P. restraining the latter company from entering upon the irrigated lands of the C. P. R. was continued until trial. Permission was however granted to the G. T. P. to move at any time to have the injunction dissolved on giving two days' notice to the C. P. R.

It is not likely, however, that the case will ever come to trial, as the two companies have now got together and are negotiating to effect a settlement of the question in dispute. It is almost certain that an agreement will be reached by the two companies within a couple of weeks, and that the work of construction will shortly be resumed.

The injunction was issued about a month ago when work was in full swing, and since that time the contractors, whose outfits are idle, have been anxiously awaiting a settlement. As soon as a settlement is effected the work of grading will be pushed with renewed vigor, and it will take only a few weeks to reach the city.

Ottawa Sends Emissary to Tokio

Ottawa.—The Dominion government has sent Dr. H. M. Duhamel, of Montreal, on a secret mission to Japan for the purpose of negotiating, if possible, the renewal of the Lemieux agreement, restricting Japanese emigration to Canada to a maximum of 400 persons yearly.

The agreement will expire in January next. It was negotiated by Hon. Rudolph Lemieux, postmaster-general, who visited Tokio in 1907, shortly after the serious Oriental riots in Vancouver had resulted in disgraceful incidents and serious damage to property. During his month's stay in the Japanese capital, Mr. Lemieux was greatly aided by Sir Claude MacDonald, British ambassador to Japan.

Their success in securing from the Japanese government an agreement restricting migration to Canada for four years, was ascribed at the time to the great personal influence of Sir Claude as well as to the fact that Japan and Great Britain were parties to an offensive and defensive alliance and the unwillingness of Japan to prolong an embarrassing situation due to the strong anti-oriental feeling then existing in British Columbia.

Latest Discoveries in Anaesthetics

Indianapolis.—The latest discoveries were discussed at a session of the American Chemical society which is meeting here. Charles Baskerville of the college of the city of New York, and Lash Miller, of Toronto, one of the foremost chemists of Canada, were the speakers.

Mr. Baskerville said that by improved methods, chloroform and ether may be administered without injurious effects to the patients, and told of deodorized anaesthetics which may be administered without the patient knowing he was inhaling the drug. He also made a plea for pure drugs which also was emphasized by Mr. Miller, in his speech.

Would Close Red Deer School

Toronto.—An important step in missionary policy was taken recently by the executive committee of the Methodist general board of missions, in the adoption of a recommendation of the board's commission, regarding the Indian work in Alberta. The report favored the closing of the present Red Deer Industrial Institute, and in lieu thereof, the establishment of three boarding schools, at Saddle Lake, Hobbema, and Morley. The Dominion government would co-operate by putting up the three buildings, costing probably $20,000 or $25,000 each, and giving a grant of $100 per pupil, while the missionary society undertakes the maintenance.

Mexico Will Be Friendly Now

Mexico City.—No more steps calculated to antagonize foreign capital will be taken by the provisional government of Mexico if the counsel of the more conservative men close to the Madero reign prevails.

"I wish you would say to the foreign world," said President De La Barra recently, "that so long as I am at the head of the government it will be friendly towards foreign investors. The country needs capital for development and this administration will welcome it as did the former."

Sask. Farmers' Send Present to King

London.—Twenty thousand wheat growers of Saskatchewan sent to King George as a coronation present a silver bread basket weighing twelve pounds and filled with bread made from Saskatchewan wheat flour. It is supposed that someone ate the bread en route, as there was none to be found when the basket reached England.

Railroad Enters Winnipeg

Winnipeg.—The Midland railroad, a subsidiary company of the Great Northern, has purchased a site and is calling for tenders for clearing it on the south end of the city. The company announces that large railroad yards will be erected there, work starting this year.

Presentation of Napoleon's Camp

Paris.—The camp and bed used by Napoleon on St. Helena have been presented to the Malmalson Society by Edward Tuck, an American resident of Paris.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON II.—THIRD QUARTER, FOR JULY 9, 1911.

Text of the Lesson, Isa. lii, 13 to liii, 12—Memory Verses, liii, 4-6—Golden Text, Isa. liii, 6—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Behold my servant, my righteous servant, lii, 13; liii, 11). This is what we must ever and always do in this blessed holy week, which is all written by the Holy Spirit and is forever settled in Heaven (II Tim. iii, 16; II Pet. i, 21; Ps. cxix 89). Compare Isa. xlii 1; Matt. xii, 18; Zech. iii, 8. Hear John the Baptist's cry, "Behold the Lamb of God!" and see Him in this lesson described as if Isaiah had been a real witness of His sufferings. I am grateful to some one for calling my attention to the fact that these last twenty-seven chapters of Isaiah are divided into three nines, the first two ending with the statement that there is no peace to the wicked (xlviii, 22; lvii, 21).

The lesson today is the middle portion of the second nine, and if we take the fifteen verses of our lesson as one portion, as we have a right to do, then chapter liii, 5, is the middle verse. What a great fact this is for us to ponder, that the middle verse of the middle chapter of the middle section of this great prophecy tells of His being wounded for our transgressions and that with His stripes we are healed. Here is the heart of the whole Bible and of all history, the one topic of conversation on the part of Moses and Elijah on the mount of transfiguration and the constant refrain of the songs of the redeemed in glory (Luke ix, 31; Rev. v, 9). In I Pet. i, 11, we read that the Spirit of Christ in the prophets testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow, and it was this very topic that He Himself opened up in that walk to Emmaus on the afternoon of the resurrection day (Luke xxiv, 25-27).

At least ten of our lesson verses tell of His sufferings (lii, 14; liii, 2-10); the others and parts of these tell of His glory. As we read of His marred visage and form we see Him before Caiaphas and Pilate in the hands of His enemies. Other verses tell of His lonely life all those thirty years at Nazareth, the ill treatment during the three years of His public ministry and the sufferings of Gethsamane and Golgotha.

This fifty-third chapter may prove to be largely Israel's national confession after they shall have looked upon Him coming in His glory and shall have received Him as their Messiah; but it is also for our individual appropriation now. We can each truthfully say if we are now His redeemed ones. Time was when by me He was despised and rejected, and I esteemed Him not, yet He bore my griefs and carried my sorrows; He was wounded for my transgressions; bruised for my iniquities, and with His stripes I was healed. Like a lost sheep I went astray, seeking only my own way, but the Lord laid on Him all my iniquity.

We are not expected to understand the mystery of His sufferings, but we are expected to believe it all and, pleading guilty, receive Him as our personal Saviour. Only thus can the arm of the Lord be revealed to us, for we cannot know His power on our behalf except in Christ Jesus by virtue of His great sacrifice.

In verse 9 note the prediction that His body would be laid in a rich man's tomb, although His enemies would prepare Him a grave as a malefactor, and we know how it all came to pass. Not only did He His own self bare our sins in His own body on the tree, but He also left us an example that we might follow His steps, bearing reproach and suffering as meekly as He did (I Pet. ii, 20-24). This we cannot do till we are redeemed by His precious blood; but then we are taught that it is a great privilege granted unto us to suffer for His sake and to fill up the afflictions which are behind for His body's sake (Phil. i, 29; Col. i, 24).

Do be silent before our enemies when falsely accused, when cruelly wronged and ill treated is a great victory and glorifying to God. He suffered shamefully for our sakes and bore it so meekly and patiently. We never can be called upon to suffer as He did, and yet we are so apt to complain when we have the least thing to bear that is disagreeable. We certainly have need of patience (Heb. x, 36; Col. i, 11). See in liii, 10, His resurrection from the dead, for in what other way could one who died prolong his days. See also His future glory in li, 13-15; liii, 10-12, when He shall be exalted and extolled and shall startle many nations (R. V., margin). He shall see the result of all His sufferings and shall be satisfied. Some one has said that while we wait for that time we should remember that He longs to see of the travail of His soul in us now.

Since the pleasure of the Lord will always prosper in His hand, what can be more desired than to be in His hand for His pleasure (Jer. xviii, 6; Rev. iv, 11), content to be treated as He was if only we may glorify Him? Note the sayings, "His soul an offering for sin" and "poured out His soul unto death" (liii, 10-12), and may His love so constrain us that we shall be willing to be poured out or cut off or suffer in any way for His sake.

tive quarter, and sat up all night marveling at the wonderful exhibitions, I had witnessed. I must admit that I ignominiously failed in my endeavors to discover any means whereby the tricks were done. Everything was done so neatly distinctly, and cleverly on a mud floor, and without any accessories or appliances beyond the minor articles required for use in the manifestations. Above all the men were pacifically naked, and had nothing in the way of pockets, in coats to assist them. I could not but wonder at the awe these men inspired in the minds of ignorant and credulous natives when I myself was mystified and astonished.

The BUSTEE was raided. I was informed, a few nights later and the YOGIES were driven away from the city. My poor old servant did not nor could not appreciate the action of the police. Alas! men of a more enlightened class than he seemed not to look with favor on the wise precautions which the parental British Government takes for their welfare and safety.

Clean Stomach, Clear Mind.—The stomach is the workshop of the vital functions and when it gets out of order the whole system clogs in sympathy. ## WEAK STOMACHS MADE STRONG

THROUGH TONIC TREATMENT WITH DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

After all has been said about indigestion and stomach trouble, there is only one way to get a real cure. The stomach must be made strong enough to do its own work. Indigestion disappears when the stomach has been made strong enough to digest ordinary plain food. This strength can only be given the stomach through the tonic treatment supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and thus enables the stomach to perform the duties which nature intended it should. In every neighborhood you can find people who have been cured of indigestion or other stomach troubles after a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this is the best proof that they are the one remedy to successfully do this. Mr. D. B. McLean, Sterling, N.S., says: "For a couple of years I suffered very much from indigestion with most of the accompanying painful symptoms. As a result I became very much run down, and as the medicines I tried did not give me any relief I grew melancholy and unhappy, and felt as though my constitution was breaking down. Quite accidentally my attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them, and I am happy to say that they effected a complete cure, and made my stomach as strong as ever it had been. I am glad to say a few words in praise of the medicine that cured me, and I hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

Enrich the blood and you banish most of the every day ailments of humanity, and you can enrich it quickest and best by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A man seldom makes a strenuous effort to keep out of the limelight.

The microscope in the hands of experts employed by the United States Government has revealed the fact that a house fly sometimes carries thousands of disease germs attached to its hairy body. The continuous use of Wilson's Fly Pads will prevent all danger of infection from that source by killing both the germs and the flies.

NOW OR NEVER IS THEIR SLOGAN

American Speakers and writers Say We Must Get Reciprocity Now or Give it up Forever

"Now or never" is the slogan of the Reciprocity protagonist in the United States. President Taft expressed this belief in his famous speech to the New York newspapermen when he said: "The forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States, and to make her part of an imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again by a system of preferential tariffs, will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it up now, or give it up forever."

Since President Taft has spoken many others have reiterated his words. The Boston Commercial Bulletin declares:

"As Canada is undoubtedly destined to make as big industrial strides in the future as in the past decade, it is evident that with the lapse of time she will become less and less desirous of renewing negotiations with the United States. The time, therefore, has come for us to strike. Shall we let the opportunity pass?"

Commenting on this utterance The American Economist observes:

"This is another way of saying that if we are going to cheat Canada in a Free Trade reciprocity dicker we had best do it right now, because, if we wait too long, Canada will get her eyes open and refuse to be cheated. Is this fair or decent or is it merely a demonstration of Yankee smartness? The Canadians are not fools. They have developed their industries under a Protective tariff and now have an industrial future. The time for us to strike passed long ago."

Going further west we find The Minneapolis Journal echoing Mr. Taft's New York speech in this fashion:

"The Taft policy spells not only North American commercial union, but also the doom of the British imperialistic unity. Too late, provided Congress acts, the British are awakening to the value of the prize they so fatuously rejected. Too late, if Congress rises to a level of this, perhaps the greatest piece of statesmanship effected by an American President since Thomas Jefferson annexed the West. Today England is our best customer, and Canada our third best. But our foreign trade wanes, and that of Canada grows. If we push Canada into England's arms, the trade arrangements between the two will tend more and more to shut us out."

They'd Tell Bill

A sad-eyed man fastened George Dunleavy, box office man and humorist. "Do you think it would be right for two women, both in mourning, to go to the theatre?" he asked.

Mr. Dunleavy said it would be commendable.

The sad-eyed man appeared pleased. "Give me two aisle seats for two women in mourning." Mr. Dunleavy dished them out. The sad-eyed man shook his head doubtfully. "It does not seem just proper to me," he said, "but I s'pose in this case it's all right. You see"—and he lapsed into confidences—"all our folks are Spiritualists, and my brother-in-law Bill died the other day. Now, Bill, he always wanted to see this show of yours. He talked about it just a day or two before he passed out, and so his wife and my wife, they kind of figured they'd come and see the show and then tell Bill about it."—Camden Monthly.

It Nearly Killed Him

"Medicine won't help you any," the doctor told his patient. "What you need is a complete change of living. Get away to some quiet country place for a month. Go to bed early, eat more roast beef, drink plenty of good rich milk, and smoke just one cigar a day."

A month later the patient walked into the doctor's office. He looked like a new man, and the doctor told him so.

"Yes, doctor, your advice certainly did the business. I went to bed early and did all the other things you told me. But say, doctor, that one cigar a day almost killed me at first. It's no joke starting in to smoke at my time o' life."

Paid In Full

An Irishman was sitting in a station smoking when a woman came, and, sitting down beside him, remarked:

"Sir, if you were a gentleman you would not smoke here."

"Mum," he said, "if ye wuz a lady ye'd sit farther away."

Pretty soon the woman burst out again:

"If you were my husband I'd give you poison."

"Well, mum," returned the Irishman, as he puffed away at his pipe, "if you wuz me wife I'd take it."

Hamilton, aged 5, had never eaten minced pie before. At the first taste his face expressed several emotions other than pleasure and he started an immediate investigation of the contents. The decision was long in coming, but it was well considered and definite; "Mamma, I don't like hash pie."

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders."

my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

Fixing the Boundaries

The forest of the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, set aside by the Dominion Government as the Rock Mountain Forest Reserve, have a tremendous influence on the life of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Not only are they valuable for the timber supply, but their preservation proper management means much in the way of reguig the flow of the streams which issue from them. For use in irrigation and the generation of power it is desirable to a steady flow of water—not a torrent in spring, which becomes a dried-up stream-bed in summer. In thus equalizing the flow of water the value of forests at the headwater of streams is universally acknowledged. Of great importance to the agriculture of the prairies, too, is the regulation of the flow of the rivers so as to maintain the level of the moisture in the soil.

The first work undertaken in connection with the reserve was the locating of the boundaries. Two parties of the Dominion Forest Service were engaged all last summer (1901) in making out the boundaries of the reserve. One of these under Mr G H Edgecombe, B. Sc. B.Sc.F. worked south from Calgary, to the international boundary; the other, under Mr. P. Z. Caverhill, B. S. started at Calgary working northward to a point almost due west of Lacombe. It is expected that during the coming summer the rest of the eastern boundary of the reserve will be located as far as its northern boundary (some fifty miles north of the latitude of Edmonton). A full report of the work done during the summer of 1910 has just been published.

The boundary as fixed by Order in Council was found to a large extent unsuitable, and the recommended boundary is in almost all cases to the east of it. The main principle followed in fixing the eastern limit was to exclude from the reserve all land suited for farming. The altitude, or height above the sea-level, was another important consideration included in fixing the line. Many valleys are included in the reserve which are quite suitable for grazing.

Immense damage has been done to the reserve by forest fires. Probably seventy five per cent of the country has been burned over. In the north Caverhill estimates, eighty per cent of the country has been burned within the last fifty years—sixty per cent of this area within the past twenty five years.

The abundance of lodgepole pine (a near relative of the eastern jack, or Banksian pine) and poplar on many tracks in the reserve is a sign of fire having passed over them. Those trees are the first to spring up on burned-over land and by their rapid growth they displace other trees and form the first forest. In the northern part of the region about seventy-five per cent of the country is covered with a forest of lodgepole pine unmixed with any other species.

Of an area of eight hundred square miles covered by the "southern" party the distribution of the land areas as follows: Timber, 9 per cent; spruce and pine "poles" (a tree of pole size is one from four to eight inches in diameter), 31 per cent; pine and poplar, 10 per cent; open grazing land, 14 per cent; bare rock, 10 per cent.
